

J.D. Foster
Candidate for Vice Chair for Finance, Potomac Valley Swimming

I am currently the Deputy Chief Economist at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, having spent 30 years researching, speaking, and writing on federal economic policy, particularly fiscal policy, macroeconomics, and international finance, from the vantage of various government agencies, the Congress, and private think tanks. One of those was the Tax Foundation, of which I was the Executive Director for seven years. I also recently served on and eventually became the Chair of the Finance Committee of a fair-sized local church.

My association with PVS begins with my two youngest (now 15 year-old twins) who swim competitively through AAC, and include working my way up through the normal procession of officials training to a recent certification as referee. My interest in the Treasurer position is simply that I find PVS to be an outstanding organization providing a great experience to tens of thousands of kids, and so if I can help in that endeavor in a manner in which I am sufficiently qualified I would be pleased to do so.
